
Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by Kathy - 2007/09/07 04:34

U.S. District Court Maxine Chesney, in California, last week issued a temporary restraining order blocking the Department of Homeland Security's plan, to send out notices to employers from the Social Security Administration informing them of non-matching records between an employee's name and Social Security number. These employers would then have to resolve the discrepancy within 90 days or be required to dismiss the employee, or face up to $10,000 in fines for knowingly hiring illegal immigrants.

Her ruling blocks the Department of Homeland Security from simply enforcing existing immigration laws. Laws she took an oath to uphold. If we cannot trust the judges in this country to uphold our laws then we do not need those individuals on the bench.

I have seen the effect of what the Department of Homeland Security enforcing these laws has done where I am currently living and what it has done is seen to it that American citizens have jobs because those who were illegally employed had to be replaced with people who had a legal right to work here. Already though there are rumors that some of these employers are trying to hire more illegals to come in and work for them because, unlike American citizens who will stand up for their rights, they can get away with working the illegals like slaves because the employers know they will not complain.

Rulings like the one last week by liberal judges such as Maxine Chesney do nothing to help U.S. citizens. They encourage employers to violate immigration and labor laws designed to protect employees from abusive and dangerous working conditions. They also encourage rhetoric such as last Sunday's demand from Mexican President Felipe Calderon that the United States surrender its sovereignty, abandon the rule of law and accede to Mexico's inherent supremacy. My only response to that idiot that I am willing to put in print is, "When hell freezes over!" Folks if we don't start insisting our nation's existing immigration laws be enforced and it's sovereignty respected by every nation then we soon will not have a nation of our own. I have no intention of ever being a citizen of Mexico.

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by QueenB - 2007/09/07 10:10

I agree

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by Hank - 2007/09/07 12:48

How can you ignore the real cost of illegal immigrants? How anyone could justify blocking the US Government from doing SOMETHING to stop employers from hiring them is beyond me. I pay to support the welfare system of this country (burdened by millions of ILLEGAL immigrants) and I'm angered by liberal judges who think that a criminal has rights, as do the employers who hire them. Send out the letters and enforce the intent. Illegal immigrants have no rights. If they want to be here so bad, let them do it legally. :angry:

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by Kathy - 2007/09/08 05:00

Hank I think you misunderstood my post. I was trying to let people know what this liberal judge has done, blocked enforcement of our country's laws, something our judges are not supposed to be doing. I am with you 100%. I am sick of people from ANY country coming here illegally and getting away with it. They are either a burden on our society or cause someone else to be by taking jobs away from American citizens. My son only has the job he has because the company he works for was recently forced to fire hundreds of illegals they had on their payroll just in this one local plant (there were as many more at their other plants), and hire people who had a legal right to work in this country. Already the rumors are flying that they are planning on hiring more illegals because they can work them like slaves and the illegals will do so without complaint. My son has not had a day off in two weeks. And they are talking about having them work 12 hour shifts now too. The company is trying to make the conditions so difficult the legal Americans will give up and quit. The owner of the company, a major central U.S. Chicken processor, is a huge supporter of the liberal Democrats, like Clinton, who appointed Judge Maxine Chesney.

Post edited by: Kathy, at: 2007/09/08 03:02

=====

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by daniel - 2007/09/08 08:09

I probably should submit a letter on this, but our representatives in congress have no intentions of securing the borders.

There are two tangible demonstrations of this in the two recent senate bills on so-called "immigration reform."

In the original, submitted by Sen. Heid (NV), there were a few days of debate. Senator Kennedy submitted a substitute amendment, which means everything that was debated in Heid's bill is wiped out, and there is a new bill.

Immediately, there was a motion for cloture, meaning the debate is ended, now we are ready to vote. Wait a minute! Not a single word of the new bill was debated on the senate bill, and they are trying to call it to vote.

Senator Kennedy's substitute amendment contained in Section 413, a congressional resolution to embrace the Security and Prosperity Partnership, which is a plan to liquidate America's borders, and send support down to Mexico.

When cloture failed, Reid immediately retracted the bill. He didn't want it discussed.

A few weeks later, Kennedy submitted the very same substitute amendment, this time in the form of a bill, with a new number. Section 413 was still present, with the same paragraph number.

Ditto motion for cloture without any public debate.

Ditto when cloture failed, bill is retracted from the house floor, lest Section 413 would be exposed to the public.

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by daniel - 2007/09/08 08:13

I have met Congressman McNerney in his public appearances, 4 times. Most recently, I witnessed a room full of people interrogating him on border security, and he made no mention of Senator Kennedy's plan to liquidate the border. Instead, he acted totally dumb and hopeless, as if he were powerless, as if the task of securing the border is outside of congressional ability.

Post edited by: daniel, at: 2007/10/14 01:17

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by Kathy - 2007/09/10 00:20

And people wonder why our Democrat led Congress has a lower approval rating than our Republican President. Both could be doing a better job.

The only people who care about secure borders in this country is the voters who have seen what having unsecured borders is doing to this country, and the threat that it poses to us every day.

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by daniel - 2007/09/10 10:20

How many people here know about the effects of NAFTA?

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by RGT - 2007/10/11 00:11

After we lock down the border, will your sons and daughters become our new maids and busboys. How many of you will start picking the food we all eat. Who is going to mow your lawns and do your landscaping for you.

Don't forget how much money and resources the USSR used up to secure there borders. And it wasn't %100 effective. I don't have the answers, but you should look at the pro's and con's befor jumping in with both feet.

=====

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by Big John - 2007/10/11 04:06

Hank wrote:

How can you ignore the real cost of illegal immigrants? How anyone could justify blocking the US Government from doing SOMETHING to stop employers from hiring them is beyond me. I pay to support the welfare system of this country (burdened by millions of ILLEGAL immigrants) and I'm angered by liberal judges who think that a criminal has rights, as do the employers who hire them. Send out the letters and enforce the intent. Illegal immigrants have no rights. If they want to be here so bad, let them do it legally. :angry:

Can You State any cases of welfare fraud by mexican nationals??? I keep hearing this, but never hear the case in point to back that up. The documentation that it takes to recieve welfare is pretty steep. and if your not working you have to be in a welfare to work training program. 2 years is the longest you can be on welfare, before the government put more heat on the recipient.

I would love to hear about more than one here in california?

=====

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by crazybill2000 - 2007/10/11 04:38

Welfare fraud is not limited to just illegal immagrants.

Legal citezens of this great nation do just as much fraud in one way or another as an illegal immigrant.

The point I would like to make is this. ILLEGAL is ILLEGAL no matter how you spell it. If you are ILLEGAL you should not have any rights to SOCIAL SECURITY, WELFARE, UNEMPLOYMENT, U.S. BANK ACCOUNTS, and most of all A STATE DRIVERS LICENSE or any other state assistance that legal americans work hard to earn the right to. I am not referring to any certain nationality or culture, I am addressing all of them.

If you want to be part of this great nation become a legal citezen. You can help make this country great. I look around all year long at the workers picking our fruits and nuts and harvesting our vegetables, I am sure most are Illegal immagrants however I have no facts, The facts that I do know are that they work hard sun-up to sun-down in all weather. I also know however that the money they do make 90% gets wired or mailed to their families in other countries.

It's the ILLEGAL IMMIGRANTS who are here to lie steal cheat and kill for whatever they want that is making us close our boarders and I agree with this proposal, close all boarders and clear out all ILLEGAL IMMIGRANTS and citezenize those whoe really want to be an AMERICAN CITEZEN.

This country was created by IMMIGRANTS from all Nationalities and Cultures and it is a tredition that needs to continue however let's make sure it is done legally. Those who are here legally need to understand that Americans respect their culture and you certainly are able to live by your culture this is the land of the free however don't expect Americans to change their culture to fit your culture.

=====

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by daniel - 2007/10/12 17:19

Big John: Why would illegal aliens do welfare fraud, when they can do social security fraud?

=====

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by daniel - 2007/10/12 17:22

RGT: I think you stereotyped White Americans a little bit there. You are insinuating that White people don't know how to harvest agriculture or prune a vineyard.

Just a few weeks ago, I picked 10 pounds of grapes off of my friend's grape vines, and I am White. Ha Ha.

But seriously, when I was a teenager, I asked a grape rancher for employment picking grapes. I admit, that I didn't know what I was asking to get into; but, the rancher told me there were plenty of "wetbacks" to pick his grapes.

When I was a kid, just 8 years old, for 3 years, I helped my grandfather harvest his almonds. We did it as a family.

You can't tell me that White people won't know how to perform their agricultural labor if there are no illegal aliens.

However, if you propose to first secure the borders, and have some kind of accountability system for foreign workers, that would be acceptable to maintaining our national sovereignty.

With NAFTA haunting us, I don't think anything we are talking about will come to pass.

Post edited by: daniel, at: 2007/10/12 15:25

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by Kathy - 2007/10/12 23:34

Daniel you make some good points that white people can and are willing to do farm labor. My maternal grandparents were farm laborers before the programs that brought Mexican laborers here to work the fields. My mom and her siblings did the same as kids. I have picked my share of crops as well.

How sad we have reached a point where American farmers expect and prefer to hire "wetbacks" over Americans of any race. There are many fields where Mexicans have become the preferred labor pool, not necessarily because they do the job any better but because they will work extremely long hours and not complain if the employer is being unfair to them or unrealistic in their expectations. The Landscaping/Landscape Maintenance fields are just about as bad as farm labor when it comes to a white American trying to get a job in the field.

My family has already felt NAFTA's effects. That is part of why the local sugar mill ended production in Tracy. My husband used to work there. NAFTA is not helping the United States at all as far as I can tell.

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by daniel - 2007/10/13 03:42

Kathy, I am learning how to use this blog column. The other day, I got a blank screen when I clicked on the link from my e-mail notification.

I just found your post about the judge that is stopping employer notifications on fraudulent Social Security notifications.

I wish I had asked you sooner: I'd like to have a link so that I could substantiate this information, and get more details on it, so that I can look like I know what I'm talking about when I confront my congressman, in about 90 minutes.

I attend Congressman McNerney's "Meet and Greets" when he comes to my area around Stockton and Lodi. In about an hour, McNerney will just be within 2 miles of my house, and you bet, I'll be there. (Addendum: It was one-on-one, so I didn't speak with him.)

On the topic of immigration, 2 months ago, I watched Congressman McNerney explain why it is that we are hopeless to the immigration situation.

Post edited by: daniel, at: 2007/10/13 03:26

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by daniel - 2007/10/13 05:24

Kathy, I wonder if sugar consumers are buying foreign sugar, at a reduced price.

Post edited by: daniel, at: 2007/10/13 03:25

=====

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by Kathy - 2007/10/13 23:31

It took some looking but I found the actual court document. Just click on the PDF link and you can view the actual document. Apparently there was supposed to have been another hearing on this October 1st but I have not heard anything more on it.

<http://www.cand.uscourts.gov/cand/judges.nsf/e31294092c275e5588256d480060b733/39ae3093a711d3aa8825734f00796db5?OpenDocument>

The 9th Circuit Home Page: <http://www.ce9.uscourts.gov/>

Actually even before Imperial started shutting some of it's facilities down they were importing some foreign sugar, then remelting it down and processing it because it did not meet American standards for color, chrystal size, etc... So even if it is imported it was still going through some processing here. At least that which was meant to be standard white sugar anyway. There are still quite a few small American sugar companies though, many of them very regional.

Post edited by: Kathy, at: 2007/10/13 21:34

Post edited by: Kathy, at: 2007/10/13 21:35

=====

Re:Illegal Immigration & U.S. Employers

Posted by daniel - 2007/10/14 03:10

Kathy, thank you. Sometimes I use references, like you gave me, so that I can have substantiation for future letters.

I'd like to ask you if you want some connections, but you seem to have your "finger on the pulse," already.

I meet with friends in Lodi to write letters to our senators and congressman, discuss the latest news about the attack on our constitution, and coordinate plans for publication of letters-to-the-editor. We discuss a lot of items that can't be found in the news, and govt/political policies.

Since you are interested in national sovereignty, I could introduce you to this "circle of friends," and I believe our content would be of interest to you.

Some of our people live around Tracy and Manteca.

Post edited by: daniel, at: 2007/10/14 01:31

=====