yes and unfortunately many of them use the money they get to buy beer and cigarettes. I would do the same and buy them food or something that can't turn into items they don't need to survive!

I routinely see people who drive cars and obviously aren't destitute taking bags of food from a food bank. I have to wonder if these people are truly needy or if they are just getting free stuff. Do most organizations check people out (tax returns, etc)? Or do they just take their word that they are needy? Anyone know?
